Immediately after the old council was adjourned since the new council's advent into office President Bock, last night, the new body assumed office and commenced a two year's grand. The semi-annual appropriation ordinance and other important matters were brought before the new ses-

Franklin Township Holds Farmers' Institute; Good Attendance Marks Opening

The annual institute of the Franklin township farmers opened at the Franklin grange hall Monday. In spite of the inclement weather all three sessions of the day were marked by a good attendance and great interest. J. F. Gordon and George S. Lentz were the speakers from the state agriculture college and gave splendid talks on some of the following subjects, "Dairying," "Producing Cheaper Beef," "Nature—Care and Application," "The Making of Manhood and Womanhood" and "The Country School."

It was a disappointment that

Miss Pearl Dorsey, who was to talk on subjects particularly interesting to the women was unable to be present but a promise has been made that Miss White, of Columbus will be substituted for Miss Dorsey today.

The only business of importance at the opening sessions was the appointing of the following committees: Resolutions—T. V. Hahn, Irving Porteus and C. T. Vensil; Nomination: J. C. Wertz, J. W. Boyer and S. A. Erman.

There will be two sessions of the institute today and officers will be elected at the closing session.

Site For New Building Bought By School Board

At a special session of the Tuscarawas township school board held last night in the office of the township clerk, a site for the new Porteus school purchased from Howard Miller at a consideration of $800. The new site has a frontage of 216 feet and is 208 feet in depth. The deal has been pending for some time.

It is planned by the board to erect one of the most complete and up-to-date two room structures in the county on the new site. The new school will be erected at a probable cost of $8000 and will be fitted out in the most approved manner. It is that that the rooms will be wired for electric lighting purposes. The foregoing conclusion that the road will

Pitiful Conditions Are Revealed by Child's Death

The funeral of Edward Earl Easton, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius V. Easton, who died at their home in Roscoe, Sunday morning, will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home. Interment will be made in the Roscoe cemetery.

The death of the child has brought to public notice the pitiful plight of the Easton family. The entire family including the mother and father and five children have been afflicted with grip and pneumonia during the last two weeks and the fact that the father and older son have been unable to work on account of their illness has left the family in a straightened financial circumstances. During their afflictions the father, after week and suffering from grip himself, has made a valiant fight to protect and care for his family, until he is practically worn out from the strain of sleepless nights and worry. The other members of the family are all recovering and the father and older son, this Easton hope to be able to go to work at the Clay plant soon. They had expected to move to Coshocton last week in order to be nearer their work but the high waters and sickness prevented this.

One son, Clarence Easton, is employed at Fort Dodge, Iowa, and is now on his way home to attend the funeral of his little brother.

COUNCIL GETS GAVEL

A handsomely carved gavel and block were presented to the new council president, C. H. Magruder, last night by the manual training class of the high school, thru D. C. Westfall.

The former councilman made a neat and witty speech of presentation saying that while the old council had performed its duties without discord, the new council was facing a stormy term and the gavel would undoubtedly be quite effective in restoring order.

President Magruder expressed his thanks, on behalf of council, for the remembrance.

Following an illness of less than a week, the nine months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Elbott, of near Helmick, died from pneumonia Monday afternoon. The child was taken ill last Tuesday and its twin sister was taken ill Wednesday, both suffering from pneumonia. They grew steadily worse, the little boy dying and the sister is in such a critical condition that it is feared she will not recover.

Patrons Are Asked To Frankly State Their Opinions To Railway Agents

POSTERS APPEAR THRUOUT SYSTEM

"What Is The Cause Of Lack Of Confidence In Railroads?" Is Query

In a remarkable effort to obtain the viewpoint of the public so that patrons may be given what they desire in the way of railroad service, the Pennsylvania Railroad has placed nearly 5000 posters in passengers and freight depots thruout the system, calling for unstinted criticism and advice.

The posters in red and black are attracting wide attention among travelers on the Pennsylvania lines. In fact, they have caused more or less astonishment, because it is the first time that any railroad system in this country has frankly approached the public in this attitude.

"What Is Your Opinion."

In the posters are asked frankly "what is the cause of lack of confidence in railroads." Just below this question is another, which is regarded as unusual coming from railroad sources. The question is, "What is your opinion?"

Local Teacher Will Take Charge of Art Department In Detroit, Mich., School

Miss Laura Fisher, of Burt avenue, who for several years has been a teacher of art in the Coshocton schools, has accepted a position as teacher of art in the new Junior High school in Detroit, Mich. Her resignation was tendered Monday to Superintendent C. E. Bryant and the Board of Education and she expects to leave January 29 to take up her new work.

The position is a splendid one with a handsome salary attached and comes as a well deserved reward for the study and efforts Miss Fisher has given to this special line of teaching. Since her graduation from Coshocton High school eight years ago Miss Fisher has each summer attended school at Chicago university and holds a degree in Home economics as well as Art from that university. She has taught both branches in the Coshocton schools with marked success and goes to her new field of work with the highest recommendations from the heads of the local schools.

Miss Fisher has also resigned as a member of the board of trustees of Carnegie library, to which she was appointed by former mayor Staats.

Rev. Twining Has Paper on The Value of Evangelism

Rev. F. A. Twining, pastor of the First Baptist church addressed the meeting of the Coshocton County Ministerial association, at Carnegie library, Monday afternoon. His subject was a timely topic, being, "The Value of Evangelism to the Church," the fact that nearly all the churches of the city are at present engaged in special evangelistic services making it doubly interesting.

Rev. Twining said that in any evangelistic movement the essential things were, fervent prayer, faith in prayer, preaching with no thought of fear or favor, personal work, humbling of lives before God, putting away of sin, confessing to God and the church the need of reviving and hence a need of God. He said any church can receive an anointing if that church is willing to pay the price. He said that the value of evangelism cannot be estimated by man. It makes the church alive, hence a power. Such a church is the clothing, the environment of the supernatural. The church must do things that cannot be explained and cannot be duplicated except by the Spirit of God. A church not in a revival state is powerless, lukewarm, disobedient and dishonors God.

LEAVES HOSPITAL

Mrs. Pearl Meeks, of Park avenue, was dismissed from the City hospital Monday following an operation performed some time ago for appendicitis. She was under the care of Dr. Marshall.

Bridge Expansion.

Bridges expand or get larger in the sun or in the daytime or in the summer and shrink in the shade or at night or in the winter. The rule is that heat makes everything expand and cold makes everything shrink. Cold is nothing but absence of heat. So we may say that everything contracts or expands according to the amount of heat in it.

Metals have a most noticeable way of changing their size under the influence of heat. So when bridges are built of iron and steel the engineer has to allow for the change in the bridge's length. After he reckons on the amount of expansion he builds the bridge so that it has room to grow a little longer in the summer.

Resembles Big
Sailing Ship

Much favorable comment was occasioned the last few days by the tasteful and elaborate decorations carried out by the Buckeye in advertising its mid-winter clearance sale.

The Hay building, at Main and Fifth streets looks like a gigantic sailing ship with its sails full spread. The myriad of tiny white pennants reaching from the top of the building almost to the street gives this corner the appearance of being decorated for some great gala occasion and is a monument to the enterprise of this forward-looking store.

MAY ARRANGE

The latest thing in Coshocton sport circles is a checker tournament which is being planned by several of the local sharks. For months past the devotees of the game have gathering in the Barwick and Valentine barber shop and the Pastime reading room whiling away the hours playing and fussing over who had the best claim to the championship title.

Naturally this could have but one ending, a series of games to decide the much mooted question of supremacy. It is likely that the contests will be held in some lodge room or other place where the players are fond of gathering. Rev. Isom of the Shiloh Baptist church, an expert at the game and who, tho he does not play the game frequently since entering the ministry, is generally conceded to have something over the best of 'em here, has been asked to referee the contests. As yet no date for the contests has been decided upon.

Poultry Exhibit
Comes To Close

The second annual poultry exhibit of the West Lafayette Poultry Association came to a close Saturday afternoon after a most successful show beginning Friday morning. Just 159 birds were entered and while this number did not exceed that shown last year it was noticeable that there had been a marked improvement in the quality of the birds shown.

The show was a financial success altho it was not known Saturday just how much was cleared. The meet aroused much interest only only in the village but in other parts of the state and augurs well for a good show next year. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected next week.

DURABLE FENCE POSTS

An Ohio farm editor says that one of the big expense bills that the farmer pays annually is for fence posts. "If the 25,000,000 posts required each year for Ohio's fences were set in line and spaced one rod apart, they would build a fence three times around the world at the equator; their cost would be $4,000,000. Why not do it right and cut down this enormous expense," continues the editor. "Build them of concrete, steel or other indestructible materials and their first cost will be their last cost and even less than what good wood posts now bring."

Mrs. W. D. Lytton and daughter, Mabel, of West Bedford, shopped in the city, Saturday.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our gratitude and thanks to Dr. Keenan and nurses at the Keenan hospital for their kindness, also to Rev. Williams and singers for their words of comfort, to the many friends and neighbors for their beautiful flowers and kindness shown my wife during her sickness.

THE THREE FOOLS.

And Each of Them in His Own Way
Was a Wise Man.

"Akbar the king, sitting upon his throne, yellow with gold and white with pearls, spoke unto the Rajah Birbal: 'Thou has said, as it is told me, that my realm is full of fools and that the completest of these fools are wise fools. Now I command thee to show me three of these 'wise fools' of whom thou hast spoken.'"

"And the Rajah Birbal bowed and said, 'Lord, I do thy bidding. So he set forth upon his quest, and in three days' time he came again before the king and his court, followed by a countryman.

"Who is this that thou hast brought before me, rajah?" said the king.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

"This, my lord," replied Birbal, "is Lal Bujhakar, the wise fool of a village of fools. While upon the search that the king commanded me I came into a town where there was a great outcry. And the noise thereof led me to a house in which stood a boy with his arms around a pillar and his clasped hands full of sweetmeats. It seems that the father of this boy had filled his hands while they were thus clasped, and the people cried out for that none could devise how the lad could be freed of the pillar without dropping upon the ground the sweetmeats that were in his hands. Then came this man and gave wise counsel. 'Remove,' said he, 'the beams from the roof and draw the pillar up through the boy's arms.' And this they did!"

"So I bade him, for his wisdom, follow me to thy court. And as we came we crossed a river upon the bank of which was printed the huge round footprint of an elephant. Long did Lal Bujhakar study that footprint and then, nodding wisely, said, 'Ah, a deer with a millstone tied to its foot must have leaped here!' Therefore do I say he is that completest of fools, a wise fool!"

"Truly," said the king, "a complete fool indeed! Yet he is but one. And did not I command thee to show me three such?"

"There be three," said the rajah. "This man is one, as thou hast said; I am the second for having sought him and brought him hither, and thou, my lord, art the third for having sent me on such an errand."—Arthur Guiterman in St. Nicholas.

WAR'S EFFECT ON POLITICS HERE

Republicans Assert It Is Responsible For Prosperity.

DEMOCRATS ENTER DENIAL

Aver That the Struggle Has Prevented Their Policies From Having a Full and Fair Trial and That It Is the Cause of Additional Taxes—War Debates Nonpartisan.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—It will be impossible to keep the European war out of the politics of the coming presidential campaign.

There has been a persistent claim by the Republicans that but for the war Democratic economic policies would have been a failure and that hard times and panicky conditions would now prevail throughout the country.

The Democrats insist that the changed conditions brought about by the war have caused the laying of additional taxes and otherwise prevented the Democratic policies from having a full and fair trial.

While an attempt has been made to keep the politics of the war confined to business and economic subjects, it is evident that before the session progresses far there will be discussions tending to show politics in the government's attitude toward the different nations at war.

A Reasonable Suggestion.

The first debate on the war situation in the senate was not partisan, and party lines were not drawn in the attitude of senators regarding the conduct of the United States. Perhaps it was because the cause of the discussion was the proffered suggestion that American citizens avoid traveling on ships of belligerent nations and thus avert the danger of involving the United States in the great European war. Of course there were plenty of men to insist upon the right of American citizens to go anywhere under the ordinary rules of international law, but those men shut their eyes to the fact that both sides have ignored international law. It was asserted that it was just as fair to warn people to keep off such ships as to warn them to keep out of Mexico and that the courage and rights of the nation would not suffer in one case more than in the other.

Pro-Allies Sentiment.

There is little doubt that just at present the belief obtains that the country is for the allies and against Germany. The men who are to go before the people this year indicated a sympathy for the allies, while men who are not candidates were inclined to a broader neutrality. There was one notable exception. Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska is positive and outspoken in favor of stopping the shipment of arms and munitions to belligerents. The other side says such stoppage would be an act of unsentimentality in favor of Germany.

Missouri Politics.

Champ Clark told the Democratic national committee that St. Louis should have the Democratic national convention because the state was in danger of being carried by the Republicans. In refusing to be a candidate for governor he says that any good Democrat can be elected.

Governor Hadley of Missouri has determined to be a presidential candidate on the Republican ticket. That will probably open the way for Walter S. Dickey to be the Republican nominee for senator. If the Republicans get a good man for governor they will make an interesting race in Missouri.

Making a Fight.

While it has been a foregone conclusion that military preparedness in some form would win in the present congress, it is evident that the opponents of the plan are going to put up a vigorous fight. Speeches delivered in the house and others printed in the Record give every indication that there is real opposition to the military plans made by the administration. One of the interesting talks was by General Isaac Sherwood, a veteran of the civil war, who insisted that as long as the United States wanted to keep out of the war there was no danger of its getting into war. He says that he has not received a single request from the people of his district to vote for military preparedness.

Could Be Better.

Meyer London, the New York Socialist, made a short speech in the house and floundered a little. "I am making this short talk to explain my vote," he said. "I can do a great deal better than I am doing now." And when the house laughed he added, "And I promise the house at some future time to be a great deal better."

All Were "New."

Congressman Hilliard of Colorado in making a speech in the house apologized for breaking in when he was a new member. Then he had an idea. "The Sixty-fourth is a new congress," he said, "and all are virtually new members." While he was literally right, service and seniority have always been recognized.

Although a Democrat, Hilliard opposed the extension of the war emergency tax. "If congress was composed entirely of new members this extension would not pass," was one of his assertions.

The "Cry" of Silk.

One of the most peculiar features about manufactured silk is the rustling sound familiar to every woman. In the silk trade they call it the "cry" or sometimes the "scoop." Of all textiles silk is the only material which possesses it. As everybody knows, the sound is heard especially when silk is subjected to friction. What is not so generally known is that the quality is found in silk yarn before it is woven. A skein of silk, unless it has been so treated as to kill this property in it, will when opened up emit the noise slightly. When the skein is squeezed in the hand the sound becomes quite audible. The "cry" is considered a very desirable quality in silk. Dyers develop it as much as possible.

Easy For This Waiter.

"I'll give that waiter," said a customer in a quick lunch room, "an order that will simply paralyze him."

"What will you have, sir?" presently asked the waiter.

"Bring me," said the would-be tormentor, "some verulam and ova."

"Yes, sir." And the waiter, a seedy looking man, went away with a twinkle in his eye and returned with a large plate of something hot.

"Here you are," he said, "bacon and eggs, in ordinary English a shilling, but in classic form three and six. 'Verba rebus aptare,' as we used to say at college. Anything else, sir?"—London Tit-Bits.

For Rough Weather.

"I think I've got a winner in ladies' footwear."

"What is it?"

"I'm working on a scheme to put chaffin around the tops of overshoes."—Kansas City Journal.

Ouch! Backache! Rub Lumbago or Stiffness Away

Rub pain from back with small trial bottle of old, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil."

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your aching back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!

Disastrous.

Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker of the City temple, London, once had a collection taken and added, with deep pathos:

"Widows and orphans will not be expected to contribute."

A few Sundays later there was another collection for the same object.

"This time," said the preacher, "widows and orphans will not be exempt, for no battle ever made so many widows and orphans as the announcement made on the previous Sunday."

No Danger.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR NOW

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring color, lustre and thickness to hair when faded, streaked or gray.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and natural color and lustre to the hair abundant.

REAL EVERYDAY LIFE.

As Seen on the Stage and Appreciated by Two Spectators.

Two women stood in a queue waiting to get in to see a melodrama. "This'll be a good show," said the first woman. "Life, you know—real life—nothing overdone."

"Yes, I like life, too," said the other. "I don't want to be put to sleep, though. Still, I can't stand nothing far-fetched."

"Same here," said the first woman. And then they went in and sat through five acts, wherein the hero killed thirty Kaffirs with his naked hand, found a diamond as big as a duck's egg, smashed with his revolver from a mile away the bottle of poison that the beautiful heroine was about to swallow rather than yield to the blandishments of the villain and finally killed the latter in an aeroplane duel, slightly off the stage, inheriting later an unexpected dukedom, and so forth, and so on.

When the curtain fell to the sound of wedding bells (two women looked at each other with glittering eyes.

"Grand, wasn't it?" said the first. "Life, real life, eh?"

"You bet," said the second. "That's life, that is—nothing far-fetched or overdone."—Detroit Free Press.

TOWER OF SKULLS.

A Legacy Left by the Turks to the Serbian City of Nish.

There have been many tragic episodes in the history of Nish, in Serbia. In the fifteenth century the Turks captured the city, and for 300 years it remained in their possession, although there were brief periods when the Austrians held it. Then, in 1900, the Serbians, who had recovered most of their country from the Turks, besieged Nish, but were defeated with great loss. The Turks to celebrate their victory erected a rough tower composed alternately of lumps of rock and skulls of Serbians cemented together.

It is related that there were originally 1,200 skulls in the tower of Nish.

For a long period it was the habit of travelers to Nish to carry off a skull as a souvenir, and this reduced their numbers. But in the Russo-Turkish war the Serbian army, under the command of King Milan, besieged Nish, and the fortress fell on Jan. 10, 1875.

The remaining skulls were then reverently buried by the Serbian troops except one, which was too deeply imbedded in the plaster to be extracted. The so-called "tower of skulls" is now only about four feet in height, and only one skull can be seen to remind the traveler of its gloomy history.—London Answers.

AN ENEMY OF MANKIND.

"An Enemy of Mankind," the first episode of "Stingaree," the series produced by Kalem from the novel by E. W. Hornung, author of "Raffles," at the Utahian every Tuesday. Reviewers who have been given the opportunity to see advance showings of this first episode pronounce it as being of wonderful interest. The story shows the circumstances which drive Stingaree from England and to exile in Australia where he at once proceeds to exact vengeance from society for the wrongs it has caused him. In defending his good-for-nothing brother from punishment at the hands of an irate husband, Stingaree, whose real name is Irving Raffles, he saves the man's life to his self. As the result, the young man's name is blackened and he is ostracized by his friends. Even his sweetheart turns against him later. Irving eventually saves the husband and so his crime is forgiven. Like all the other episodes in this series, "An Enemy of Mankind," is in two acts.

THE TIME TO CHOOSE

In the arguments before the British parliament in favor of the government's conscription bill perhaps the ablest was made by Mr. Balfour who, at the outset of his speech, disclaimed having been in favor of conscription. He declared that at this time the nation was not dealing with an abstract question, but a measure of immediate and pressing expediency.

He said the conscription bill is not a precedent and that no future prime minister can use it as such. He said it was neither the thin edge of the wedge nor the first drop of poison that was to taint the whole British system with militarism. Mr. Balfour was doubtless honest in making this statement, altho he cannot possibly know where England will end, once having adopted the policy of compulsory military service.

But he followed these statements with one in which we believe he is clearly wrong. He said: "Militarism is an affair of the heart, and it is in the hearts of the German people to have militarism, while it is in the hearts of Englishmen not to have it."

It is probably true that it is largely an affair of the heart, BUT MILITARISM WAS NOT ALWAYS IN THE HEARTS OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE. We believe there is at heart no more peace-loving, home-loving race of people in the world than the German people. The poison of militarism was not always in the German system, not even in the Prussian system. It was instilled there adroitly and by slow process, even as the American militarists would now instill militarism in the minds of our little children in the schools.

The Germans at first hated militarism, even as Americans now hate it and we Americans would do well to read how militarism was first introduced into Germany. They first despised the thought of it, then came to tolerate it and then, after two or three generations, when the poison had become thoroughly instilled into their system, looked upon this abhorrent thing as a wise measure and a necessary national policy "of defense."

In an admirable work entitled "Europe Since 1815," by Professor Charles Downer Hazen, we are told how the thing was fixed upon Prussia and the entire German empire. The grandfather of the present kaiser prior to 1860 conceived it to be his duty to increase his standing army from 200,000 to 450,000. This was to be accomplished by adding 25,000 soldiers a year to the number ordinarily recruited in times of peace.

When the king brot into the chamber of deputies the first bill for the maintenance of the additional troops, the chamber passed it, believing that it was only of a provisional nature. But when the king, the next year, brot in another bill of the same kind and parliament learned what were his real designs, the bill was promptly thrown out. The king insisted on his bill. Parliament insisted on its rights. To quote from Professor Hazen:

"A deadlock ensued. The king was urged to abolish Parliament altogether. This he would not do because he had sworn to uphold the constitution that established it. He thot of abdicating. He never thot of abandoning the reform. He had written out his abdication and signed it when he at last consented to call to the ministry as a final experiment a new man, known for his boldness, his independence, his devotion to the monarchy, Otto von Bismarck. Bismarck was appointed President of the Ministry September 23, 1862. On that very day, the chamber rejected anew the credits asked for by the king for the new regiments. The conflict entered upon its most acute phase, and a new era began for Prussia and the world."

"In this interview, Bismarck told the king frankly that he was willing to carry out his policy whether the Parliament agreed to it or not. 'I will rather perish with the king,' he said, 'than forsake your majesty in the contest with parliamentary government.' His boldness determined the king to tear up the paper containing his abdication and to continue the struggle with the chamber of deputies."

"For four years the conflict continued. The constitution was not abolished, Parliament was called repeatedly, the lower house voted year after year against the budget, supported in this by the voters, the upper house voted for it, and the king acted as if this made it legal. The period was one of virtual dictatorship and suspension of parliamentary life. The king continued to collect the taxes, the army was thoroly reorganized and absolutely controlled by the authorities, and the lower house had no mode of opposition save the verbal one, which was entirely ineffective."

Does not this narrative contain an ominous warning for our people? The German people were at first loath to become militaristic. The people supported the lower house in their instinctive dislike and fear of the monster which afterward became fastened on them and changed the character of a great people and doubtless the trend of the world's history.

A writer in the current number of Scribner's in an article entitled "Second Thoughts on This War," tells of the spiritual change which has come over Germany as a result of three generations of a policy of "blood and iron."

There are racial temperaments to which certain ideals are fatal. The Teuton of all men requires the Christian ethic to correct and modify something science-ridden, overbearing, and unhumorous in his soul. The Teuton, before the new philosophy of self-expansion laid hold on him, was salutary, from his many great qualities, in a world of other men. But his was the last nature that could afford to succumb wholesale to the Gospel of Force. If he could only see himself he would realize that the very thoroughness of his nature made it ruinous for him to tamper with this particular ideal, which he was bound to run to death, to the danger and alarm of all other races.

No observer, who has the feelers of an artist, can fail to be aware of the spiritual change in Germany. I remember one tiny instance out of many—a mere straw showing the direction of the wind. The winter before the war there were in a certain hotel in Egypt four Teutons. A quiet dignified old man, his little quiet dignified wife, and their two big sons. The difference between the two generations was little short of terrible. In the older, such an essential air of unassuming goodness, in the younger a demeanor so intolerant, so gross and domineering; those two sons were respectful and good to their father and mother; but toward the rest of the world—to natives, English, Americans, and other small fry—they displayed an astounding truculence of manner.

The Berlin Concordia, I see, has just issued maxims of conduct to the German people, in a little book called "Let Germany learn." I cull two of them: "The soft-corner in your heart for the foreigner will never give you his affection, but only his contempt!" and: "Everything depends on your own strength." Democracy and Autocracy; the Will to Love and the Will to Power are at grips within every nation; but when the balance swings over definitely in favor of autocracy and force in a nation with such organized might, and such a temperament as this of the Teuton, then in the other nations discord is stilled, and they move out in armor against the Will to Power, lest they too be enslaved in a world as clamped down and formalized as ever was old Egypt.

Surely, there is a tremendous lesson in all this for America. If Wall Street, the Money Power and the army and navy clique are in earnest about this extreme preparedness propaganda of theirs, THEN INDEED IS THE UNITED STATES AT THE PARTING OF THE WAYS. From the first it has been the strongest tradition of our people to hate any indication of militarism.

Not even "Taxation Without Representation" was a more powerful factor in bringing on the Revolutionary war than a whole people's detestation of having a standing army quartered on them and at their expense in times of peace. And that detestation of all military systems is thoroly ingrained in the American character. It has been fostered for a full century and a half AND OUR MILITARISTS KNOW THAT THE ONLY WAY TO OVERCOME IT IS THE BISMARCK WAY OF GOING DOWN INTO THE SCHOOLS AND INSTILLING INTO THE MINDS OF LITTLE CHILDREN THIS BISMARCKIAN POLICY OF HATE AND OF "BLOOD AND IRON."

The expense of militarism is the least obnoxious feature about it. It is the pernicious effect it will have on our national character that makes it most to be feared. It is really a question of our form of government. We should know by this time that DEMOCRACY AND MILITARISM ARE INCOMPATIBLE.

No free people have ever yet survived the very program which the militarists are trying to fasten on us AND NONE EVER WILL. The idea of FORCE in popular government is diametrically opposed to the idea of GOVERNMENT BY POPULAR VOICE. The two cannot long live side by side. And from recent developments it would seem that the time to choose between a democratic and an autocratic form of government has suddenly come to our people.

Saving Old Couple.

They were a very saving old couple, and as a result they had a beautifully furnished house.
One day the old lady missed her husband.
"Joseph, where are you?" she called out.
"I'm resting in the parlor," came the reply.
"What on the sofa?" cried the old lady, horrified.
"No, on the floor."
"On that grand carpet?" came in tones of anguish.
"No, I've rolled it up."—Buffalo News.

Armenian History.

The history of the later years of the Armenian kingdom is bound up in the history of An. The stronghold city became the capital of the Bagratid kings of Armenia in 961. The Byzantine emperor captured it in 1046, and it was then a live of many scores of thousands. The Seljuk Turks carried fire and sword throughout its confines eighteen years later. The warlike Georgians took it five times between 1125 and 1230. The Mongols overran it in 1239, and an earthquake in 1319 completed the work of ruin. The great cathedral, the most perfect survival, was founded in 1010, just at the beginning of the city's long chain of misfortunes.

Easy to Preach.

"Who wrote that article on how to support a family of six on $15 a week?" a friend asked Wozzles, the editor of the Household Friend. "Bing ham, one of our best men," said Wozzles, without a smile. "We pay him $5,000 a year."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Aaron Burr's Grave.

Aaron Burr died at Fort Richmond, Staten Island, Sept. 14, 1836. His remains were conveyed to Princeton, N. J., where, according to his request, he was interred at the feet of his father and grandfather. Both his father and grandfather were presidents of Princeton college.

For nearly two years the spot where he lay was unmarked, when one morning it was discovered that a small, very substantial and not expensive monument of granite and marble had been placed during the night over his remains. No one in the town saw the monument erected or knew anything whatever respecting it. There was no stonecutter in the vicinity capable of executing the work. The stone bears the inscription: "Aaron Burr. Born Feb. 6, 1756. Died Sept. 14, 1836."

GET IT FIRST—NOT LAST

When a cold grips your system it is a convincing proof that your condition is weakened—remember that. It is risky indeed to simply trust your strength to throw it off, because neglected colds have brought more serious sickness than any other one thing, while weakening cathartics and stimulating syrups are often depressing and dangerous. The one best treatment for any cold—the one so often relied on when others fail—is the powerful blood-nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the very sources of bodily strength to suppress the present cold and generate strength to thwart further sickness. Get Scott's first, not last—and insist on the genuine—always free from alcohol and injurious drugs.

John Dane gave up, and sold his farm for $2200

And the man who bought it got his money back in two seasons.

For 20 years John Dane failed to make a living on 64 acres. He tried corn, truck and other crops that he could have sold in a good market four miles away. But the farm did nothing except sprout seed.

The new owner took it in the winter. Although there was no rain from May 10th to September 1st, he produced and fed $1800 worth of silage to beef cattle—the first good crop that farm had borne in 20 years.

And that first summer he increased the fertility so much that the next season he got the whole purchase price back.

And he's made a living plus ever since.

How?

He did it by practicing the kind of farming that is found every week in

In a certain town there is a baby four months old who has not yet been christened. It has worried the friends of the parents, for they are anxious to know what the child is to be called. The other day a friend of the father stopped him on the street and said: "Named the baby yet?" "No, not yet," was the answer. "Well, why don't you name him?" "What's the use? He's red-headed, isn't he?" "But what difference does that make?" "All the difference in the world. It wouldn't do us any good to name him. The kids wouldn't call him by it anyhow."—Indianapolis News.
